EET Europarts makes an 8th acquisition this year with Agix, the French surveillance and security distributor. Financial details of the deal are not available as yet.

Founded in 1983, Agix specialises in IP surveillance solutions such as network cameras, software and network video recorders (NVRs). It also offers technical training and product support.

"Agix Distribution has a strong position in the French market, distributing quality products to professional surveillance customers, so it is a perfect match for EET Europarts," the distributor says. "Additionally the acquisition will further enhance EET Europarts´ longstanding cooperation with Axis Communications, the market leader in network video."

Post-acquisition the Agix brand and employees will be folded in the EET Europarts French business.

The Danish distributor has been keeping busy with the acquisitions this year-- last month saw it buy Spanish cabling company Import Cable, its 2nd S. European acquisition of 2016. And it insists to continue buying other companies at such a rate in the near future, something it describes as "an important part of our strategy."
