

Chief announces its latest addition to its Raxxess AV rack system family, the G1 series.

The G1 Series is meant to be easy to install, and includes pre-welded ganging nuts and easily accessible hardware-- allowing installers to gang racks after loading components.

The front and rear rack rails are adjustable, while optional doors are reversible, locking and fit the rack's front or rear.

A vented removable bottom cover panel provides extra mounting space, and the horizontal rack rail comes with cable management slots-- allowing for easy cable management. The packaging also cushions the rack's back, for lay-down loading.

The G1 series should start shipping in June.
