

Dell Hit by Thailand Floodings

Written by Marco Attard
23 February 2012

Dell misses profit targets for fiscal Q4 2012 due to failing to have enough HDDs for its high margin product line-- with net income reaching $764M, a -18% Y-o-Y decline.

Company EMEA revenues see growth in Q4, increasing by 8% Y-o-Y.

On the other hand Dell revenues for Q4 total $16BN with 2% Y-o-Y growth. Revenues for fiscal 2012 reach $62BN, as Dell shifts its business strategy away from the consumer market to higher-margin enterprise markets.

The Dell is getting stronger within the enterprise segment, as large enterprise and SMB are up by 5% and 6% Y-o-Y respectively. Services, storage and server revenues also show growth. The company is also looking to work further on its new software business, particularly following acquisitions such as Compellent.

Enterprise now accounts for 30% of total revenues ($4.9BN)-- and that is where the company will surely start putting more of its attentions.

Go Dell Fiscal 2012 Earnings Report