

xSolutions' 2011 Debut

Written by Marco Attard
11 August 2011

The IML Group launches xSolutions, a new trade show hosting the latest in video developments within vertical markets for both IT resellers and end users, taking place at London's ExCel this October.

Exhibitors will include leaders in bringing video to business, institutions, education, non-profits and MNCs, while attendees will include trade visitors working in IT, AV, electrical, security, telecoms, acoustical and building services.

Visitors will also include end users with whole-building, whole-company or campus-wide technology and operating authority.

IT industry consultant and conference leader Bob Snyder says “we’ve put together a great conference programme for IT users and resellers... It’s so important to understand the differences that video technology can add to an organization across a network.”

Attendance registration is free, while exhibitors can contact the organisers online for stand booking and leverage sponsorship opportunities.

Go xSolutions 2011