

LifeSize in Regus Office Spaces in 40 Countries

Written by Bob Snyder
03 April 2012

LifeSize will set up HD video conferencing rooms for businesses and for public in more than 240 Regus rent-an-office locations worldwide. Regus customers will be able to communicate with colleagues around the world via video or conduct business over HD video while traveling.

LifeSize, the videoconferencing division of Logitech, is leveraging the Regus (world's largest provider of flexible workspaces) network of locations in central business districts and transport hubs to create a public network of easy-to-access, stylish, video-enabled business suites across more than 40 countries.

This worldwide network of LifeSize Public Rooms (LPRs) is publicly accessible, giving businesses convenient access to LifeSize's HD video conferencing.

LPRs are equipped with LifeSize 220 Series HD video conferencing systems, which feature 1080p HD video and HD data sharing for a video collaboration experience that mirrors in-person engagement.

Regus customers can use these LifeSize rooms for a wide variety of video collaboration scenarios including:

LifeSize in Regus Office Spaces in 40 Countries

Written by Bob Snyder
03 April 2012

- Seamless video calling with customers and partners, regardless of their video platform
- Remote candidate interviews, connecting candidates to interview teams through local Regus offices
- Data sharing and collaboration with colleagues while traveling

Also important: LifeSize and its channel partners will also have access to the LPRs, an additional option for demonstrating LifeSize systems to prospects, customers, partners and distributors.

Go LifeSize Goes in Regus