

Maverick Brings HP Elite Slice to Europe

Written by Frederick Douglas
11 May 2018

Maverick AV Solutions teams up with HP and Logitech to bring the Elite Slice to Europe-- a modular desktop collaboration solution offering easy setup, an intuitive UI and crisp audio.

The Elite Slice is a compact desktop device promising seamless video meetings on any platform, in rooms of any size. It carries a powerful PC together with HDMI and DisplayPort connections for multiple monitor support. Maverick takes the system a step further with Logitech, bringing about all-in-one systems and plug-and-play devices for complete ease of use.

The Huddle Room Kit adds the Logitech Brio webcam and K400 professional touch keyboard for a solution ideal for meeting rooms of up to 6 people. Meanwhile the Conference Kit supports up to 15 participants through the HP Collaboration PC and the Logitech Group. Each solution is scalable and flexible, and are simple to deploy through customisable Quicklaunch SE software.

"The HP Elite Slice solution is a shining example of true collaboration and the simple, seamless integration and user experience that Maverick AV Solutions continues to offer its resellers and their end users," Maverick says. "As worldwide experts in SRS technology, we're pleased to be working in partnership with industry leaders who understand people and processes and can offer versatile and trusted products as part of our solutions."

Go HP Offers Simple Collaboration With the HP Elite Slice