SpinetiX announces ARYA-- a turnkey digital signage solution for small and midsize businesses the company says provides an affordable visual communication solution combining both cloud and hardware-based technologies.

ARYA allows customers to quickly set up visual experiences from own devices, and deliver content in a highly secure way to any screen, any size and orientation. A guided user experience enables easy creation of visual content with personalised colour codes and logos, as well as images and videos readily available on the device.

The solution comes with a free tier service, enabling the user to gain hands-on experience with the cloud application through 9 templates with pre-built animations and transitions. In addition, users can get different contents on any number of screens, and have access to a live help chat to get guidance and provide feedback.

ARYA is available now.
