

Ingram Micro Buys into Europe With Ictivity

Written by Alice Marshall
14 February 2020

The European Ingram Micro service offering gets an enhancement with the acquisition of Ictivity, the Dutch provider of services including consulting, implementation and managed services.

Based in the Netherlands with offices in Eindhoven and Vianen, Ictivity will continue operating independent, if as an Ingram Micro company. Ictivity management and employees should remain in place, with managing director Wilbert van Beek reporting to Ingram Micro VP Eric Segers.

"The addition of Ictivity supports our strategy to expand our European capabilities in high-value, fast-growing markets, including IT services and consultancy," the IT giant says. "Ictivity is well-known and respected throughout the Netherlands for their customer focus and value-add approach and we look forward to providing our joint customers with an expanded portfolio of offerings. We are delighted to welcome the Ictivity team to Ingram Micro."

Ictivity has a 22 year history in managed services, workplace automation, IT adoption and infrastructure. It is a certified platform partner with Aruba, HPE, Citrix, Fortinet, F-Secure, Guardian360, Ivanti (RES Software), Microsoft, Azure and Office 365, Veeam and VMware, and employs over 150 people. Customers are mainly midsize organisations, with more than 100 workplaces in healthcare, government and commerce.

Go Ingram Micro Further Enhances European IT Services Capabilities with Acquisition of

Ingram Micro Buys into Europe With Ictivity

Written by Alice Marshall
14 February 2020

Ictivity